

Conversations with Jan

You are visiting a web site of a man, who made a decision to reveal life's mystery and to understand its rules and order.

I have devoted much energy in this respect; I have set out on a Journey to search for inner Truth. This site, at the present time, portrays a reflection of what I, myself, have learned. It represents my public activities both in a verbal as well as in a written form.

On this site you will find – shortly summarized – the program of my public meetings. These meetings are held in a form of free discussions, and their purpose is to enable the seekers of Truth to become better oriented on their Journey.

The book Life in our Hands that was recently published also deals with the topics of this Journey, solving life's situations, or searching for a sense of life. This book is currently being translated into the German language, and negotiations about its publication in Germany are under way.

Last but not least, visitors of this site will find here a space for an interaction in the form of questions and answers.

For more explanation of who is represented on this site, there are included several sections following this brief introduction: presentation of the author himself, few words about the book Life in our Hands, and examples from the second book, which is at the present time being prepared for publication. This book will be called Contemplation about Life and the two examples from this book presented on this site - "Little Things" and "Partnership" - shall give the potential reader an imagination of the subjects in this book.
